The LEO TakeDown to make appearance at the 2018 Shot Show

Rome, Ga, Nov. 2 – The LEO TakeDown will be making its first SHOT Show appearance at the 2018 SHOT Show, Las Vegas, Nevada. After drawing large crowds at the 2017 NRA Conference in Atlanta, the LEO team is anticipating significant interest from law enforcement departments as well as the commercial AR industry. LEO TakeDown invites you to visit them at the NEXT Pavilion, 2018 SHOT Show.

The LEO TakeDown is an instant barrel release system that allows the user to swap between barrel lengths, calibers and discreetly carry the AR, M4 or AR pistol caliber rifle. It is designed for MILSPEC AR platforms. Originally designed for law enforcement as a way to carry their rifle in a discreet manner, the LEO provides the ability to rapidly elevate force posture without alarming the public and without sacrificing readiness.

With law enforcement requirements in mind, the LEO was designed for straight-in/straight-out attachment, all gross motor skills, positive locking, 100% military grade steel, no clips or latches that can impede rapid deployment, MILSPEC threading to accept commercially available hand guards and a tactical sling backpack that supports rifle deployment in under 20 seconds.

The LEO has been widely demonstrated and Testing & Evaluation has been conducted with numerous agencies associated with Federal, State and local law enforcement departments as well as the Department of Defense.

The LEO TakeDown is currently accepting dealer applications. Additional information can be located on the website at www.leotakedown.com or by phone at 706-512-3000.
